SPONSORSHIP & EXHIBITION PROSPECTUS

The 4th annual Rising Seas Summit brings professionals together to highlight the interrelationships between sea level rise, climate change and extreme events. The Summit series has grown each year from its inception in Fort Lauderdale in 2013 through the 2015 event in Boston. Boasting well over 300 attendees from the public and private sectors, the Rising Seas Summit is the premier national program focused upon adapting to sea level rise. As the recent findings related to the Antarctic ice shelves cast clearer light on rates of sea level rise, the coastal ecosystems and inland water systems are at even greater risk, and the recent catastrophic impacts from hurricanes and typhoons have made the need to plan for adaptation a clear and present necessity. These emerging and increasing environmental challenges require that stakeholders share knowledge and work together to reduce and mitigate environmental, economic and social degradation induced by climate change.
